But first, we eat!

The world we desire is possible.

Every human being relates to the table. The table is where we reclaim our humanity.

And no matter our differences - where we grew up, how much money we have, or the color of our skin - we all belong at the table. And when we eat together - we connect, bond and acknowledge our deepest desires and need to be seen, known and belong. In a world of disconnection, there is no more powerful place than the shared meal.

Imagine a world where each of us have two or three loyal and empathetic friends - with us through the joys and the dark? Imagine employees in a company who have dinner together after work because they feel included and ignited in shared purpose and mission? Imagine a cross-section of people representing the diversity of the city collaborating on solving our greatest issues by first eating, sharing stories and laughing?

We are made for connection. And when we feel like we belong - we thrive, we feel secure and we flourish. So first, we eat!

A Table Is

A single, long table where people of all walks of life and diversities share a meal.

When we eat together, the table reveals our shared humanity and fundamental sameness and holds the explosive potential to increase our sense of belonging, cultivate understanding and honor our differences.

At the table, without distractions, sitting face to face, we can feel seen, heard and known.

Kevin J. Beaty

At each table, a cross-section of people of all diversities are intentionally invited by hosts. Beautifully set with real place settings and decorations and slow-cooked food, guests feel seen, valued and humanized.

Intentional conversation moves guests beyond the superficial and into a realization we are much more alike than different.

The Impact of the Table

Like slow-cooked food, the table nourishes and impacts deeply.

We have hundreds of stories reflecting meaningful impact - new friendships, job connections and greater awareness of others and their culture through shared conversation and storytelling.

Longer Tables Littleton will launch what may become our city's most powerful and impactful gathering, as well as place of pride and joy as we cultivate a citywide movement toward connection, well-being, collaboration and true inclusivity.

Through our strategic partners, Super-Hosts and Co-Hosts, we will continue to inspire and impact companies, neighborhoods and organizations through launching a community-wide effort to address loneliness, while increasing well-being and health.

Our Mission

To connect, collaborate, and uplift all communities, businesses, and resources of the Littleton Community to join together as one for greater impact upon its well-being.

“Hospitality means primarily the creation of free space where the stranger can enter and become a friend instead of an enemy. Hospitality is not to change people, but to offer them space where change can take place. It is not to bring men and women over to our side, but to offer freedom not disturbed by dividing lines.”

- Henri J.M. Nouwen
